

Carolina Olmos

MD is currently an Assistant Professor at the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences of UT Health McGovern Medical School, also a provider in the Anxiety clinic of the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. Up until last year she was the chief resident for the educational year of 2021-2022 of the UTH residency program, in her last year of her US-based psychiatry residency. She is a board-certified psychiatrist in Brazil since 2013 in the US since 2022. Dr. Olmos completed extensive clinical work in very diverse and challenging setting as a psychiatrist in Brazil before moving to the United States. Her primary interests are in anxiety disorders, mood disorders and cultural psychiatry, upon which her recent research projects and presentations focus.